BRIEF DIRECTIONS FOR THE CULTIVATION OF BULBOUS ROOTS.

FOR the growth of Hyacinths in pots, prepare the soil by mixing one-half decomposed turfy loam with the other half made up of equal portions of well rotted manure, leaf-mold and beach sand. The pots should be about five inches in diameter, and deeper in proportion than for ordinary plants. If desirable, three or four bulbs may be placed together in ordinary 7-inch pots, which will give the requisite depth for the roots, and by the arrangement of different colors together, secure the most effective display when in bloom. In planting, fill the pots lightly with soil to within half an inch of the top, and overlay with a thin coating of beach sand; then place the bulbs on the surface and imbed one-third their depth, and by a slight pressure settle the earth around them; after watering, put them in a cool, dark place, where they should remain from four to six weeks, or until the roots have nearly reached the bottom of the pot, when they may be brought gradually into the light and heat, as required to keep up a succession of flowering.

For culture in glasses, the Hyacinth should be placed so that only the base of the bulb touches the water, the supply being given to that effect. They should then be put away in a cool place, protected from the light until the roots are well developed; then they may by degrees be exposed to the action of moderate heat and sunlight in the parlor or conservatory. The water should be replenished about once a week, care being taken not to bruise or break the roots by the process. Rain or soft water is most conducive to vigorous growth and bloom. Many of the single-flowered Hyacinths are more effective than the double ones, and generally succeed best in glasses as well as for early forcing in pots; they are also most effective for bedding.

For the cultivation of Hyacinths, Tulips, Crocuses, etc., in open border, prepare a soil as near as may be to that described for cultivation in pots. The beds should be well spaded up and pulverized to a depth of 15 inches at least, and left from 2 to 4 inches above the path, in a slightly rounded form, so as to carry off the superfluous water from the surface. In planting, the tops of the bulbs should be placed from 1½ to 4 inches beneath the surface, according to the size of the bulb; i. e., Hyacinths may be planted 4 inches, and Tulips 3 inches deep, while 1½ to 2 inches deep is enough for Crocuses and Snowdrops. After placing in position, a small quantity of clean beach sand thrown in on top of the bulbs before replacing the soil will aid in protecting the flower-scapes from damage through excessive moisture and contact with the surrounding soil; use it where practicable.

Bulbs should be planted in open ground during October and November, and on the approach of severe frost the bed should be covered over to the depth of 2 or 3 inches with coarse manure, leaves or litter, which must be carefully removed on the approach of mild weather in the spring, to avoid ruining the spikes as they push up.

Crocus.

NAMED CROCUS.

These are hardy little bulbs, producing one of the earliest of spring flowers, blooming often before the snow is fairly gone. They are suitable for forcing in pots, hedgehogs, etc., or the open ground. When planted out they should be set quite close, to produce an agreeable effect. They are sometimes employed to produce lines, letters or figures on the lawn, and may be left in and mowed off with the grass without injury, as, by the time for the first cutting of the grass, the Crocus bulbs will be sufficiently matured to stand the loss of their foliage.

Lilium Harrisii.

LILIES (LILIUM).

In selecting a location for planting Lilies, due attention must be paid to the proper preparation of the soil. In the first place, it ought to be properly under-drained, so that no water can collect around the bulbs. Then it should be well enriched with old, well-rotted stable manure; if a proportion, say one-third, of leaf-mold or peat can be mixed with the soil, it will be all the better; in heavy, loamy soils, the same proportion of sand will make a very suitable spot. They require very little care, and when once planted should be left untouched as long as possible.

COLUMBIA PLANT TUBS

These Tubs are made of the best Cypress timber, which will keep for years without decaying. They are made of twelve staves, in tapered shape, held together by two heavy steel wires, which are connected with substantial iron handles, and are so arranged that the wire can be tightened or loosened by simply turning nut on handle. The handle itself is so constructed that the tub can be lifted by hand, and, in case the plants are heavy, sticks can be inserted in the handle, thereby allowing all weight to be lifted with perfect ease.
